Rev. Dr. Arvin R. Luchs

“All for one and one for all!” the rallying cry rang out. It wasn’t a clutch of swashbuckling renegades. It was a gathering of United Methodist leaders—lay and clergy—from across Oregon and southern Idaho. It wasn’t the rebel yell of the gallant d’Artangan, but the reasoned thoughts of our Conference’s Director of Connectional Ministries, Scott Harkness. It wasn’t a retelling of Dumas’ Three Musketeers, but a new way of looking at a central value of United Methodism. We believe that we are more effective in ministry when we work together.

John Wesley once said that there is no such thing as a solitary Christian. He was saying that our personal faith flourishes in a community of believers—and he also meant that our communities of faith are more effective when they join hands in mission. He called it “connexion” and made sure that every class, every preaching place and every mission was related to the whole society. 300 years later we declare our “connection” to be central to the “Methodist Way.” Our book of order, The Discipline, states, “Connectionalism...is multi-leveled, global in scope, and local in thrust...It is...a vital web of interactive relationships.”

(para 130)

Harkness described each congregation as a mission station focused on making disciples of Jesus Christ and our regional conference a network of ‘discipling centers.’ He added, “The conference needs each ministry setting to accomplish our connectional mission...each ministry setting needs the conference...to help provide the connectional reach of ministry beyond the local level.”

That “Connection” came to life in our worship service last Sunday.

Our new bishop, Bob Hoshibata, shared in worship and delivered our morning message. The demands on a bishop’s time are daunting. They are the spiritual leaders of our connection. In addition, they are charged with the administration and oversight of the mission of the conference, the personnel management of the clergy, as well as responsibilities to lead in the national and international church. We are grateful that he and his wife, Greta, were able to schedule a visit so early in his tenure. But it is especially poignant that they brought the perspective of the world-wide church to our congregation and our pulpit.

During that same worship service, with our children’s help, we commissioned Drs. Leif and Marge Terdal to a Volunteer in Mission effort in Guatemala. They fly to Central America later this week. Over the next few weeks they’ll be doing construction, visiting orphanages and delivering clothes and vitamins to poverty-stricken communities. They are part of a team of volunteers from across our region. Over the years we’ve sent a substantial number of First Church members to join forces with United Methodists from across the country in offering help and support not only to Central America, Africa, India, but also mission efforts within the United States. Others have participated by providing financial support as well as clothes, medicines and school supplies that are distributed on the mission field.

In that service we not only received from the wider connection—we offered our best effort back to it. “Connection” is not an organizational principle—it is a dynamic relationship. “All for one and one for all.”

See you in Church!

Arvin

DR. McGAUGHY: THE HISTORICAL JESUS & CHRISTIAN FAITH

Orthodox Christian faith has been constructed around the creeds of the early church and their focus on Jesus as the divine son of God and second member of the Trinity. Biblical scholarship since the Enlightenment has been searching for the historical figure of Jesus of Nazareth behind the creeds. Does this historical figure of Jesus have any relevance for Christian faith? If so, how would this unfolding knowledge of the historical Jesus affect our beliefs, ethics, and worship? What difference, if any, does the quest for the historical Jesus make for Christian faith?

The adult class, Changing Christianity, hosts this class featuring Dr. Lane C. McGaughy, George H. Atkinson Professor of Religion & Ethics Religious Studies at Willamette University.

Sunday, December 5 at 9:00 AM in the Fireside Room
THE MAGI AND THE OBJECT OF FAITH:
Must we accept the ancient worldview to be Christians?

Sunday, December 12 at 9:00 AM in the Fireside Room
THE VIRGIN BIRTH AND THE MORALITY OF FAITH:
In what sense is Jesus the redeemer from human finitude?

Sunday, December 19 at 9:00 AM in the Fireside Room
THE ANGELS AND THE CONTENT OF FAITH:
In what sense is Jesus the revealer of divine knowledge?

Just in time for Christmas, a sale of Guatemalan gift items, sponsored by the Global Missions Committee and Los Amigos de Los Romeritos, will take place during Coffee Hour on Sunday, December 12.

This sale is a means of providing financial assistance to Los Romeritos, a Guatemala City day care center that is supported by a number of UMVIM teams and the Oregon City UMC. Both Pat Williams and Dee Poujade visited this ministry last winter; Leif and Marge Terdal will be visiting it on their trip to Guatemala this winter.

Items available will include tote bags, fabric glass cases with carrying strap, miniature dolls in typical garb, pillow covers with embroidery of children around a world, purses, scarves, and delicious Panajachel Coffee beans. ## alternative christmas a project of global missions

2004

Does Dad really need another tie? Does Mom need another bottle of perfume? How about giving the gift that can make a difference? The Global Missions Committee has the perfect gift for everyone's shopping list - Alternative Christmas. For the four Sundays of Advent (beginning November 28), First UMC members and friends can shop at the Alternative Christmas table in Collins Hall, choosing a project that reflects the recipient's (or giver's) view of how to best make a difference.

Alternative Christmas projects for 2004 are:

- The Goose Hollow Family Shelter
- The Medical Clinic Salud y Paz in Guatemala
- Southern Philippine Methodist College (scholarships)
- Pastoral Support in Lithuania

Donations in any amount may be made to any or all of these projects, which are described in more detail in the literature that will be available at the table. And shopping couldn't be simpler - just write a check (or hand over some cash), and receive a gift card that can be used to notify the recipient of your gift! And move over, Santa!

Do you want to remember a friend or loved one who has passed away from HIV/AIDS? On Sunday, December 5, we will be remembering our loved ones by reading their names aloud in church. If you are interested, please write the person's name on the back of an attendance card and specify, "for AIDS Awareness Sunday." It's as simple as that!

who are we ? Dr. Raymond E. Balcomb

I was recently asked to do a one-page history for our upcoming pictorial directory. This is what I wrote:

An 1844 land claim was given the name of Portland a year later and had a few rude log cabins. Within three years it also had a few Methodists, and not later than 1848 it had its first church of any denomination. The town had about 100 inhabitants and the church had seven members (which so far has been the highest proportion of members to inhabitants it has ever enjoyed.) The current membership of that church is pictured in this directory.

We built our first building in 1850 (which had the bell you can still see in our narthex), and subsequent ones in 1868, 1889; the present building dates from 1957-1971. We started out on the edge of "downtown" and we are still on the edge of downtown, and we have helped start about 40 other Methodist Churches (not all of which still exist) in Portland, as well as many others in Oregon and Idaho.

We have survived through the great flood of 1861, the great fire of 1873, the Columbus Day storm of 1962, recurring financial "panics," the Great Depression, thirty nine Presidential elections and sent service people to the Civil, Spanish-American, First and Second World, Korean, Vietnamese, Gulf, Afghanistan, and Iraqi wars. Among our members have been laborers, homemakers, skilled workers, school teachers and administrators, professors, police, professionals, business and industrial and civic leaders, governors, and members of Congress.

A few years ago a small earthquake rocked a college campus in the middle of the night, awakening almost everyone; one student shouted, "It's an earthquake!" and another answered, "I think there's one under my bed too!" That is a graphic description of our time: we are feeling troubling tremors and there is an earthquake under almost every bed. But in God's providence we believe that this church's work has just begun and we are privileged to have a part in it.
