memo

Bishop Hoshibata

Dear Friends of the Oregon-Idaho Annual Conference,
At the 2004 General Conference in Pittsburgh, Bishop Bruce P. Blake (then of the Oklahoma area, now retired) preached an extraordinary sermon entitled, "Give Until It Heals."

In that sermon, Bishop Blake urged us all to exercise the Wesleyan discipline of giving until our gifts of love, compassion and money result in the healing of mind, body and spirit in our communities and world. We now have another opportunity to demonstrate our willingness to give until it heals.

This past week has seen danger, destruction, and death in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. As always, the media have offered us startling glimpses into the fury of the hurricane. When the morning after dawned, we became aware of massive destruction and the sorrow of loss brought by wind and water. A very long and extensive recovery process will be required before life can resume with any sense of "normalcy." We offer prayers for those whose lives have been touched directly and indirectly by Hurricane Katrina.

Now, efforts are being directed at the clean-up and rebuilding. As resolute as humans are, most are beginning to focus on the future. And yet, there are many who will not be able to see clearly what comes next in their lives. Still too much uncertainty; too much pain to get on with life just yet.

As you and I have come to expect, the United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR) is already responding. This disaster relief arm of our United Methodist Church is ready because you have empowered it to be ready through your "One Great Hour of Sharing" special offering. UMCOR is thus empowered to turn 100% of your donations to relief supplies and efforts, not administrative costs. It is a miracle of our denomination that such immediate reaction is possible.

This calls to mind our United Methodist "connectionalism." The response to a disaster elsewhere in our connection is a reminder that we are one in Jesus Christ in our common compassion for others who are suffering or in distress. When Jesus calls us to be "one," it is exactly this kind of benevolence that unites us, and UMCOR offers us the mode to respond not as individuals, but as a body of Christ, a family of God. Together we can participate in the healing of those in pain and the uplifting of those who are downtrodden. In the vernacular, "That's what 'church' is all about!"

Just eight months ago, we were called to respond to the disastrous tsunami in southern Asia. You responded graciously and generously. Now, I call upon you to in like manner, to give out of compassion to those whose lives are overturned by this disaster of mammoth proportions. To do so is to share in the call to care for one another as Christ cares for us.

In Christ's shalom,
Robert T. Hoshibata

a prayer

God, our Creator, we stand in humility in the midst of destruction of such proportions as we have witnessed. We are stunned by the proportion of destruction and damage. So we turn our prayers to ask you to lift out of darkness those who have experienced great loss: of life, of health, of purpose in life. We ask that you also surround with your care the many who have lost homes, places of employment; material goods and property. As we respond with our prayers and with our resources, may we know deep in our hearts that we are living into our faith in Jesus Christ when we give generously and compassionately. We ask that your spirit may move us to give until it heals in the name of Christ who gave his life that we might be healed in eternal life, Amen.

EMERGENCY RESPONSE
CLEANS UP, REBUILDS, AND OFFERS HOPE.

You may make a donation to UMCOR for this disaster through First Church
Your checks should be marked: Hurricane Relief. To keep up on the latest news regarding UMCOR'S response you may go to our website at www.fumcpdx.org.

shovel & rake report

a great fellowship opportunity

“This is by far the best fellowship group I have ever experienced!” So said one of our Shovel and Rake Gang recently. Our attendance has averaged some 20+ workers each week throughout the summer. In July, 38 members and their spouses, enjoyed a potluck picnic at the McManus farm out from Sandy, with special guest Joyce Hulse. In 1982, Joyce Hulse joined her husband Clarence in initiating the first such group. A pictorial directory of the group, now in the church library, was shown for the present members to appreciate during our gathering.

One of the special projects for this summer has been creating a new lawn behind the church gym. We have taken out the ivy and troublesome laurel hedge. The ground has been rototilled and a sprinkler system is being installed in preparation for seeding before the end of summer. Anyone with time to join us for work on Thursday mornings will find a warm welcome in this weekly fellowship group.

youth mission trip

a special report

This summer’s Youth Mission Trip to Campbell Farms was a huge success. In all, we had 14 youth and five adults who responded to God’s calling by volunteering their services to the people of the Yakima Valley in Washington. The group worked in various capacities at the farm, at food banks and thrift stores, painting people’s houses, and teaching young children. The week-long trip allowed for many opportunities for making friends and sharing talents.

One our our youth had this to say, “The Mission Trip left me wanting to continue to give, as service and devotions ought to do.”

We would also like to take this opportunity to say thanks to everyone at First UMC for supporting the youth and helping make this summer’s trip possible!

your faith & your money

“Your Faith and Your Money” is a workshop conducted by Dr. Michael Reeves, author and notable church leader. This workshop will be offered on Sunday, October 9 at 12:30 PM in the Fireside Room. Dr. Reeves will preach that Sunday morning. After hearing him preach you will not want to miss this workshop sponsored by your Financial Stewardship Committee. Plan your day so you can stay and participate in this workshop about the future of our church. Lunch and child care will be provided. Watch for more information about Dr. Michael Reeves and this important workshop in the next issue of the Circuit Rider.

Who Are We ?

Dr. Raymond E. Balcomb

We have been discussing worship, and particularly its current trend in western (I don't know much about mid-western or southern Methodism in this regard) Methodism toward a “post-modern” form. There are a number of things to be said about it from an historical perspective. One, it is a continuation of what we have been doing since our founding in 1784, that is, change a little every generation. We have always had Orders of service that were “put together” by our ministers, rather than following some ancient authority like the medieval Western Catholic, or Martin Luther’s or Archbishop Thomas Crammer’s (who virtually wrote the Anglican Book of Common Prayer) adaptations of it. Our fathers and mothers resisted things we regard as “traditional” as much as some of us are resisting the “post modern!” And a few of us would like a real Camp Meeting type of service. Secondly, the use of contemporary music is at least as old as Luther or Wesley, both of whom utilized popular (even bar-room) tunes in their hymnody. Thirdly, such services have the basic fundamentals of Protestant worship: congregational singing, Scripture reading, prayer and preaching. A printed Order was a technological innovation in its time, just as much as a Power-Point projection is in ours. Finally, emotion has its place in worship. Most of us are a little wary of too much exuberance, but who is to say that a worshiper cannot be inspired to enthusiasm, vocal outbursts, dancing, by the Holy Spirit? Any careful Bible reader and church historian knows that such outbursts have been common, at least since the time that King David made a fool of himself in his wife’s eyes by cavorting “with songs and lyres and harps and tambourines and castanets” before the Ark of the Lord (2 Samuel 6). The only real question to ask of those who practice such things was told to Bishop Roy Nichols by his mother. He was an African-American brought up in a tradition of enthusiastic worship. His mother’s wisdom was, “Roy it doesn’t matter so much how high they jump as what they do when they come down.” To the extent that post modern worship will increase “love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control” among us, I am all for it.

RESPONSE UPDATE

PORTLAND'S FIRST UNITED METHODIST

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 2005

(Compiled including information from United Methodist News Service and UMCOR releases)

The immediate response of First Church members and friends to the horrible suffering in New Orleans and along the Gulf Coast is gratifying.

As of this time over $14,000 has been contributed in special offering for Hurricane Relief! More is arriving, literally, hourly. A check with Sunday's gifts was forwarded yesterday. We will send every contribution to UMCOR promptly. Thanks to all of you who have made it possible.

Nationwide—as of Tuesday—had given more than 1.7 million. That is only the start!

Our gifts are directed to the United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR) who are at the scene and responding. Their efforts are coordinated with FEMA, The Red Cross and Church World Service.

UMCOR's Sager Brown Distribution Depot (in Baldwin, LA) has received and sent thousands of health kits, sewing kits, blankets, flood clean-up buckets and bottled water to emergency aid stations. UMCOR Teams are distributing truckloads of food, water and clothing donated by (among others) TV psychologist "Dr. Phil" McGraw and Oprah Winfrey.

UM Churches, hospitals, retirement centers and campgrounds have been opened to receive the displaced. Work teams are preparing to go into areas where waters are receding to help victims pick up the pieces.

At First Church, a response task force under the guidance of Minister of Discipleship, Dr. Lowell Greathouse, will meet tonight to identify some 'hands-on' ways we can be involved in the effort. Their concern is both with victims who are being relocated to Portland and those still in the ravaged southeast.

Your gifts of money, are still the most effective immediate response. Another offering will be taken next Sunday. In the meantime, checks can be made out to First United Methodist but clearly designated "Hurricane Relief." 100% of your gift will be used in the relief efforts—there is no overhead or administrative fees.
