memo

Rev. Dr. Arvin R. Luchs

The Rev. Jim Mowry recently joined the staff of First United Methodist in San Diego as Minister of Visitation. In a recent issue of the Outlook (that congregation's newsletter) he reflected on a trip he took to the Rectory at Epworth, England.

That's a very special place for Methodists. It was John and Charles Wesley's childhood home—the one that burned when John was just five years old. The boy was pulled from the flames in the nick of time. A rescue that made such a deep impression on his mind that he regarded himself as providentially set apart, a "brand plucked from the burning." (Wallace, Charles Jr., Susanna Wesley: the complete writings, New York: Oxford University Press, 1997, p. 67.) The old parsonage has been rebuilt twice since the fire and is both a popular stop for tourists and a research lab for scholars..

The well-preserved Rectory, Mowry observed, stood in contrast to nearby St. Andrew's Anglican Church where Wesley's father, Samuel was vicar (and the reason the family lived in Epworth). It too is an important site for Methodists—John preached there and his father's grave is in the church yard. But the old church is lost in the shadows, ill-kempt and decaying, overgrown with foliage.

Mowry reflected, "Something happens when the vitality of ministry is only a devotion to the past." ("Minister's Musings," Outlook, First United Methodist Church, San Diego, CA., Vol. XLIX/34, August 22, 2007, p.1)

That's a good thought! One we should keep in mind as we remember our congregation's fifty years of ministry in our current building.

We can, rightly, be proud of the record of faithfulness to God that has characterized not only the last five decades, but the more than century and a half of First Church's witness in Portland. Ministries of rich music and worship, community involvement, cutting-edge social witness, Christian education, service to the needy, youth and scouting programs, as well as national and international mission efforts, have helped to make this a very special place, indeed!

But, devotion to our past—as Mowry reminds us—is not enough!

When we gather next Sunday to remember, I hope we will also be anticipating. And that we will be as concerned with responding to God's call in the next 50 years as we are thankful for God's blessings over the last 50!

We started this anniversary year by adopting a challenging image for ourselves—one that captures both our unique heritage and our commitment to the future:

Portland's First Church: Living a vibrant faith: Believing, Thinking, Acting!

Thank God for what we've been!
Praise God for what we can be!

See you in Church!

SPECIAL PARENT TRAINING OPPORTUNITY

Orientation Session—Sunday, September 16th at Noon in the Fireside Room

Knowing how to be a "good" parent is not something most people are born with. It is something we learn from our own parents, with a little help from other family members and friends. The S.T.E.P. parenting education program has been widely acclaimed for its effectiveness and sensibility. Using "Evidence Based" techniques, and an interactive approach to learning, it is lively and fun.

Samaritan Counseling Center, in partnership with First United Methodist Church, is proud to offer the S.T.E.P. parenting training program for parents and prospective parents. Classes run for 7 weeks and are offered at First Church, starting the first week of October, at a day and time to be agreed with participants. The cost is $99 per couple, the orientation is free.

the journey

Rev. Lowell Greathouse, Minister of Discipleship

In a recent sermon I quoted Fred Rogers (that is, Mr. Rogers) regarding the issue of disabilities. Mr. Rogers was keenly aware of many of the deeper issues of life and was able to communicate these things to children in simple and clear ways. Consider his words regarding the nature of disabilities in life:

"Part of the problem with the word disabilities is that it immediately suggests an inability to see or hear or walk or do other things that many of us take for granted. But what of people who can't feel? Or talk about their feelings? Or manage their feelings in constructive ways? What of people who aren't able to form close and strong relationships? And people who cannot find fulfillment in their lives, or those who have lost hope, who live in disappointment and bitterness and find in life no joy, no love? These, it seems to me, are the real disabilities."

Stewardship

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

The call for an effective emphasis in stewardship today can be supported by three practical reasons.

The first reason is need on a world scale. This need is evidenced by illiteracy and lack of education, poverty which denies multitudes the necessities of life, hunger so extensive that millions of people have not strength by which to support themselves, and illness which inevitably goes with undernourishment. The second reason for the call to dedicated stewardship springs from the fact that there are those fortunate enough to have more than they really need of the world's resources.

The third reason is the potential for renewal of life which comes to persons who respond to God's call to meet the world's need. The sharing of resources in Christian generosity could go far in meeting the world's needs. This sharing should begin with the full commitment of individuals to offer all resources to the end that the basic needs of persons may be met.
